

LEE IN THE SOUTHWEST.

GRAND OVAION AT SALEM.

A splendid Rally of the Roanoke Democrats, held at Salem, Va., on Saturday night, October 1st, 1885.

SALEM, Va., October 1.—The South-west is ablaze with political excitement, and in every section preparations are being made to receive Fitz Lee. All the counties in this section are organizing caucuses to receive him as he reaches their respective counties. In a number of the counties there will be large barbecues.

The people are as thoroughly aroused as in the caucuses of 1883. From present indications it is believed that the majority of this year will be largely increased. With good organizations and the enthusiasm Lee is arousing among the people in different sections of the Southwest it is impossible to give figures. There is a friendly rivalry existing on the part of the county committees to excel each other in the ovations given to Lee.

Today will long be remembered by the people of Roanoke county, for at an early hour the people began to pour into Salem from every direction, in vehicles, on horseback, and afoot. At noon the streets were literally thronged, by far the largest number of people ever assembled here on any occasion. And the ovation given to Lee was such that any party extended him.

Fitz Lee was expected on the freight train from Christiansburg, and at 9 o'clock the cavalcade began to form its line. It numbered between 700 and 800 men, under the command of D. G. Armstrong, with the following aides: J. T. Bandy, T. Benton Wiley, John Gordon, Major R. W. Page, John M. Evans, Colonel O. W. Howell, and B. F. Thomas.

The eight clubs represented forming three divisions. At the head of each division was a band of music and a large United States flag. Upon the lapel of the coat of each man was a white silk badge with the words "Lee, Massey, and Ayers, Our Standard-Bearers."

The first club was a cavalry company, commanded by Colonel John E. Penn; aides, M. M. Rogers and John A. Persinger. The second club was under John Coles, the third under Major R. D. Martin, the fourth under Dr. Oscar Wiley, the fifth under Captain John Garst, the sixth under John W. Woods; aides, George McConkey and John H. Bennett. The seventh was under James W. Marshall; the eighth under Captain S. F. Sumner.

After the line had been formed they marched to the depot and waited the arrival of General Lee. The train reached here at 12 o'clock, and when General Lee stepped from the platform of the car cheer upon cheer rent the air—the people growing wild with enthusiasm. Such a waving of banners and flags and such a cheering and shouting had never before. After a few minutes order was restored and the march through the streets to the court-green commenced.

At the head of the column was a stage-coach handsomely decorated with flags of different nationalities and drawn by four black horses, and containing members of the press from different sections of the State and General Lee. Behind it was a mounted battery. Then came Fitz Lee mounted upon Mohawk, a superb black stallion that was ridden by him at Yorktown during the Centennial. Next came R. A. Ayers in a village cart driven by Judge Griffin, who held in one hand a banner upon which was inscribed in large letters, "Ayers, the Cart-Driver." This was followed by the Roanoke Band of twenty pieces.

When the column reached the main street Fitz Lee and the marshals halted. The command "Open column!" was given, the line extending for nearly a mile. The head of the column rested on the court-house green. General Lee, with head uncovered, bowing to the right and left, and followed by the marshals, galloped through, amidst shouts of hurrahs, to the speaker's stand.

All along the line numbers of private dwellings were decorated. The speaking then commenced. General Lee was greeted with enthusiastic cheers as he came forward to address an audience of over 2,000, including many ladies. His speech was listened to with rapt attention by the vast audience, and his happy hits were received with generous applause. As he neared the speaker's stand and arraigned the Republican party and its leaders, Mahone, Wise & Co., cheer after cheer rent the air, and exclamations were heard on all sides that the General had risen far above the expectation of his most sanguine friends.

He closed with a grand tribute to the candidates, including Ayers, the cart-driver. Mr. Strouse then introduced Mr. James Dunlop, of Richmond, who made an eloquent speech, arraigning the Republican party for its misdeeds and exposing the methods of Mahoneism. Mr. Dunlop was cheered to the echo.

Judge Griffin then introduced R. A. Ayers as the cart-driver, and said that if he should be true to Virginia as he had been to his widowed mother and sisters the interests of Virginia would be in his hands.

Every one was anxious to see and know Ayers, and as he came forward upon the stand he was greeted with prolonged cheers. He said that it was not his intention to make a speech after the principles of Democracy had been so aptly set forth by the leader of the Democratic host and the distinguished gentleman from Richmond city, but in a few pithy, strong sentences he defined his position, urged activity and vigor upon the Democrats of Roanoke.

The people were impressed with this his first appearance in their midst. He was followed by Giles C. Huffman, the Democratic nominee for the House, who acquitted himself with marked ability, making a good impression and surpassing the best expectations of his friends. At the close of the speech, and after the speakers had dined, an immense cavalcade from Roanoke City and Hotspur Springs, augmented by a large force from this place, and headed by two bands of music, escorted General Lee and party from the Duval House to the city of Roanoke, where Lee and others speak to-night.

PETERSBURG AND VICINITY.

Political Notes—Disputed Republicanism—Fitz Lee's Visit.

(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.)

PETERSBURG, October 1, 1885. Major Daniel addressed the largest political assembly last night that ever met in Petersburg. There was hardly breathing-room in the Academy, and a great number of persons were compelled to leave because they could not get inside the doors. During the three hours that he spoke no one left the house. The speech was a glorious one, and the audience responded with enthusiasm to every point he made. His scathing rebuke of the Democrats at this late day secured political reform by the Legislature, and race strife received thundering applause. He exhibited a number of circulars that had been issued from Republican headquarters, which he proclaimed to be devoid of truth, proving his assertion by proofs from the record.

There is really much dissatisfaction among the colored people with the nomination of W. H. Jordan for the House of Delegates by the Republican Convention the other night, as shown by the large meeting held last night for the purpose of discussing the matter. The dissenters evidently mean business, as a committee was appointed to wait upon Jordan and request him to withdraw. This committee will report next Monday night.

The collections of internal revenue at the office in this city for the month of September amounted to $34,282. The exports of manufactured tobacco from this city for the same month amounted to 487,000 pounds.

Only four marriage-licenses were issued in this city last month, and all of them to colored couples. This was the first month in years in which no white couple were licensed to marry here. Thirty-three deeds were admitted to record during the month.

Judge Edwin M. Mann, of our Hustings Court, is seriously ill of diphtheria, and has for several days been unable to hold his court. Judge W. H. Mann, of Nottingham, his brother, arrived in the city today to visit him.

The business improvement steadily continues, and our merchants generally predict a permanent revival of trade.

Two youths went on duty as messengers under the immediate-delivery system of letters-to-day, but their services were not in much demand.

KING GEORGE DEMOCRATS.

General William H. F. Lee and Captain M. Bushback Speak.

(Special telegram to the Dispatch.) FARMINGTON, Va., October 1. There was a very large assemblage of the people of King George County to-day. General William H. F. Lee and Captain George A. M. Bushback were present and spoke in the interest of the Democratic party. These gentlemen made excellent speeches, were enthusiastically greeted, and loudly applauded. It seemed for the first time to affect the steady nerves of the New York fields, who had shown themselves throughout, as did their antagonists, impervious to any of the influences which surrounded them. A study of the score shows that in to-day's game the visitors were defeated at all points, and on neither side was a foul called, raising the question of the decisions of the umpire. The attendance, notwithstanding another threatening day, was 10,000. Both sides were handsomely cheered as they appeared on the ground, and every good play throughout the game was applauded. The Chicago loss the loss was sent to the ball, but the first three batters hit, and the game was decided. For New York O'Rourke was given his base on balls, but the next two men at the bat went out on flies to the outfield, and the third man, Gillespie, from Pfeffer to Anson.

In the second inning Anson went to the bat for Chicago, and went out on a fly to O'Rourke; Pfeffer made a base-hit; Williamson struck out; Burns reached first on a foul ball; Ward, and Gore were out. McCormick hit the ball to Gerhardt, who missed it, letting Pfeffer and Burns score; Sunday went out at first. For New York, Dorgan flew out to Dalmrycle; Richardson went out from McCormick to Anson; Welch was given his base on balls, but Gerhardt flew out to Burns.

In the third inning Dalmrycle opened for Chicago with a base-hit, and Gore was given his base on balls. Kelly hit to Ward, who also caught Gore, making a double play. Anson went out from Welch to Connor. For New York, Ward flew out to Pfeffer; O'Rourke made a base-hit, and on a passed ball and wild throw by Kelly, scored. Connor was given his base on balls, but on Ewing's short hit to Pfeffer both were put out. Pfeffer began the fourth inning by taking his base on balls, and went to second on a passed ball. Williamson flew out to Dorgan. Burns hit to Ward and reached first on the latter's effort to catch Pfeffer, who was headed for third base. Ward made a wild throw and Pfeffer came home, Burns taking second base on the play. McCormick went out at first, Burns taking third base on the play, and on a wild throw to catch him ran home. Sunday went out at first.

In the fourth inning Dorgan made a base-hit, but three other batsmen went out on short flies. Dalmrycle made a three-base hit in the fifth inning, but Gore, Kelly, and Anson went out in succession. New York went out in one, two, three, four.

In the sixth Burns made a two-base hit, two men were out, but was left to Pfeffer. McCormick flew out to Connor. O'Rourke made a base-hit, and on a passed ball and wild throw by Kelly, scored. Connor was given his base on balls, but on Ewing's short hit to Pfeffer both were put out. Pfeffer began the fourth inning by taking his base on balls, and went to second on a passed ball. Williamson flew out to Dorgan. Burns hit to Ward and reached first on the latter's effort to catch Pfeffer, who was headed for third base. Ward made a wild throw and Pfeffer came home, Burns taking second base on the play. McCormick went out at first, Burns taking third base on the play, and on a wild throw to catch him ran home. Sunday went out at first.

In the seventh and eighth innings both sides went out in succession, in one, two, three, four.

Williams opened the last inning for the Chicagoes with a fly captured by Connor. Burns made a base-hit, and McCormick made another, and both were passed a base by a passed ball. Sunday went out on a foul fly to Connor. Dalmrycle then made his furious drive into center field, which enabled both Burns and McCormick to score. Gore made a base hit, snaling Pfeffer to second base. Gore took third base on a wild throw to home plate to head off Dalmrycle. Kelly struck to second base, which Ward and Gerhardt fumbled between them, allowing Gore to score and Kelly to reach first base. Anson flew out to O'Rourke. For New York, Gillespie flew out to Dalmrycle; Dorgan went out from Pfeffer to Anson, and Anson took Richardson's fly, closing the game. The score is as follows:

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., October 1.—As David Appenzeller, of the dry-goods firm of Hoke & Appenzeller, was driving across the Western Maryland railroad track near here this morning his horse balked immediately in front of the engine, and he struck an omnibus in New Britain at Black-Rock grade crossing. It was occupied by children on their way to school. Charles Dyson, aged nineteen years, driver of the omnibus, and his sisters Minnie and Lottie, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, were so badly injured that one has since died and the others will probably die. They were the children of the owner of the omnibus. The engineer says that the horses became unmanageable and ran upon the track in front of the locomotive.

CHAMPIONS WIN AGAIN.

EASY VICTORY FOR CHICAGO.

The Winners of the League Present Defeat the New York Giants Once More—Ten Thousand Spectators Witness the Game.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.) CHICAGO, October 1.—The New York Giants went down before the prowess of the Chicago Club again today. While there were errors committed by both clubs, the defeat of the visitors was more complete than the two preceding. Their famous batsmen made only three hits during the game, and for a total of only three bases, while the Chicagoes batted Welch for a total of ten bases.

The Chicagoes made displays of hitting strength in the ninth inning, when the score stood 4 to 3 in their favor, with the New Yorks, however, to follow them at the bat. The Chicagoes piled their runs up, deciding the contest beyond peradventure. During the progress of this inning the audience, which had been kept up to this time in a state of nervous doubt, on Dalmrycle's clean drive into right field, enabling two players to create the home run, broke into thunderous cheering, the contagion apparently reaching to every one present save the immediate supporters of the New York nine, and even some of these appeared to catch the infection. It caused the playing to cease for a moment. Mature men threw their hats in the air and shook hands and fell into the arms of persons unknown to them. Some even ran up to the champion ship remnant of 1885, and there was another scene of frantic cheering. It seemed for the first time to affect the steady nerves of the New York fields, who had shown themselves throughout, as did their antagonists, impervious to any of the influences which surrounded them. A study of the score shows that in to-day's game the visitors were defeated at all points, and on neither side was a foul called, raising the question of the decisions of the umpire. The attendance, notwithstanding another threatening day, was 10,000. Both sides were handsomely cheered as they appeared on the ground, and every good play throughout the game was applauded. The Chicago loss the loss was sent to the ball, but the first three batters hit, and the game was decided. For New York O'Rourke was given his base on balls, but the next two men at the bat went out on flies to the outfield, and the third man, Gillespie, from Pfeffer to Anson.

In the second inning Anson went to the bat for Chicago, and went out on a fly to O'Rourke; Pfeffer made a base-hit; Williamson struck out; Burns reached first on a foul ball; Ward, and Gore were out. McCormick hit the ball to Gerhardt, who missed it, letting Pfeffer and Burns score; Sunday went out at first. For New York, Dorgan flew out to Dalmrycle; Richardson went out from McCormick to Anson; Welch was given his base on balls, but Gerhardt flew out to Burns.

In the third inning Dalmrycle opened for Chicago with a base-hit, and Gore was given his base on balls. Kelly hit to Ward, who also caught Gore, making a double play. Anson went out from Welch to Connor. For New York, Ward flew out to Pfeffer; O'Rourke made a base-hit, and on a passed ball and wild throw by Kelly, scored. Connor was given his base on balls, but on Ewing's short hit to Pfeffer both were put out. Pfeffer began the fourth inning by taking his base on balls, and went to second on a passed ball. Williamson flew out to Dorgan. Burns hit to Ward and reached first on the latter's effort to catch Pfeffer, who was headed for third base. Ward made a wild throw and Pfeffer came home, Burns taking second base on the play. McCormick went out at first, Burns taking third base on the play, and on a wild throw to catch him ran home. Sunday went out at first.

In the fourth inning Dorgan made a base-hit, but three other batsmen went out on short flies. Dalmrycle made a three-base hit in the fifth inning, but Gore, Kelly, and Anson went out in succession. New York went out in one, two, three, four.

In the sixth Burns made a two-base hit, two men were out, but was left to Pfeffer. McCormick flew out to Connor. O'Rourke made a base-hit, and on a passed ball and wild throw by Kelly, scored. Connor was given his base on balls, but on Ewing's short hit to Pfeffer both were put out. Pfeffer began the fourth inning by taking his base on balls, and went to second on a passed ball. Williamson flew out to Dorgan. Burns hit to Ward and reached first on the latter's effort to catch Pfeffer, who was headed for third base. Ward made a wild throw and Pfeffer came home, Burns taking second base on the play. McCormick went out at first, Burns taking third base on the play, and on a wild throw to catch him ran home. Sunday went out at first.

In the seventh and eighth innings both sides went out in succession, in one, two, three, four.

Williams opened the last inning for the Chicagoes with a fly captured by Connor. Burns made a base-hit, and McCormick made another, and both were passed a base by a passed ball. Sunday went out on a foul fly to Connor. Dalmrycle then made his furious drive into center field, which enabled both Burns and McCormick to score. Gore made a base hit, snaling Pfeffer to second base. Gore took third base on a wild throw to home plate to head off Dalmrycle. Kelly struck to second base, which Ward and Gerhardt fumbled between them, allowing Gore to score and Kelly to reach first base. Anson flew out to O'Rourke. For New York, Gillespie flew out to Dalmrycle; Dorgan went out from Pfeffer to Anson, and Anson took Richardson's fly, closing the game. The score is as follows:

CHICAGO..... 10
NEW YORK..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10
Hits..... 10
Errors..... 0

Chicago..... 10
New York..... 3
Runs..... 10